

Dr. Emerson opens orthodontics practice here

Broken Arrow Ledger
September 03, 2008

Dr. Clint Emerson has come home to open an Orthodontics practice specializing in smiles for children, teens and adults.

The 2,400-square-foot Emerson Orthodontics facility at 421 W. Stone Wood Drive is the only practice in the Tulsa area offering hidden lingual I-braces.

Emerson grew up in Broken Arrow and points with pride at being a K-12 product of Broken Arrow Public Schools. His parents both work for the school district, dad Charles as a teacher at North Intermediate High School and mom Judy as a secretary at Sequoyah Middle School.

Now in his fourth year of practice, Emerson is an honors graduate of Harding University and the University of Mississippi Dental School. He receives his specialty certificate in Orthodontics and Dentofacial Orthopedics from Louisiana State University.

Away from his practice, he is a high school football official and has participated in church mission trips to Mexico, Belize, Honduras and the Ukraine.